LANETT — On Thursday afternoon, the Lanett City Board of Education heard a report on cyber security in the classroom and how the system is trying to stay ahead of the game and prevent students from falling victim to online predators.

Technology Director Katrina Goss had a power point presentation on the threats presented by phishing and what can be done about it.

People have to be extra careful these days with both computers and smartphones. “Don’t open unwanted emails. You can be hacked that way,” she said.

"He not only can coach football, he also does a great job of keeping a bus fleet in good shape," Superintendent Johnson said. "We want to thank you and your main- tenance staff for their continued efforts to provide bet- ter seats for the students in Lanett City Schools."

In addition to being the head football coach, Story is also the system’s athletic director and transportation direc- tor.

In his report to the board, Johnson said that he antici- pated having to fire his more elementary teachers next year based on growth at W.G. Lox Elementary School.

"As of today, there are 35 students in good through the sixth grade," Johnson said.

On March 21, the system’s ending balance of cash was $6.8 million. Total revenues have increased from this time last year by close to $17 million.

Johnson said the school will host a ring ceremony for the 2017 Class 2A state title and the first settler roads. He will also present im- ages of the first settlers. This appears on the first aerial photograph of the county taken in 1862, according to U.S. Department of Agricul- ture and the U.S. Geological Survey.

"The contact among the family members and neighbors may be help- ful for anyone studying rural family history and wanting to know the exact location of family ancestors and neighbors," said Malinda Powers, CVHS president.

Hillard said that he was born into farm families of many local elders who were the last non-mechanized farmers in Chambers County and nearby Hand County, Ga. They knew their farm land, he said. They all worshipped it. Their fields had no names as simple as the Grey Field, where Indians had lived, and distinguishing names such as the Devil’s Half Acre, he said. "Stories were told about the animals, birds, insects and the weather."

The one of them over heard about how much wealth they could have if they could have the land, he said, "we show how well they built and maintained. They had grown plants and all the crops in order to survive the weather of the land."

Parents & Families of Graduating Seniors!

On Saturday May 12th, The Valley Times-News will be publishing its Annual Graduation Edition. To show our support of all the graduates, we are offering a special promotion for parents, relatives, and friends of Graduates. This gives them the opportunity to show how proud they are of their loved one.

ATTENDANCE

Typically, we’ve captured the names of the graduates in the area in the past, but this year we’re taking it a step further.

We’re looking for all the graduates in the area, regardless of their grade level, and we’re asking their parents or guardians to help us.

This year, we’re asking parents to provide the names of their children, as well as their favorite memories of them.

We’ll also be asking for a photo of each graduate, and we’ll be compiling these into a special section of the graduation edition.

Deadline Friday, May 4th

Call 334-464-8110 or come by our office and speak with Kippe House, Ashley tipper or Eric Sharpe in the advertising department.

LANETT REPORTS
LANETT — Special Congratulations shall Morgan, Pastor of Community Baptist Church and Rev. Mar -
Come out and visit the Expo
Event is a great learning about local businesses

This Friday, the Greater Valley Chamber of Commerce will be hosting its 4th Annual Business Expo at Lanett High School. According to Chamber Executive Director Donna Ennis, the event will feature 33 businesses looking to show off their goods.

Everyone can stop by and bring family and friends to enjoy the event. If you are a current or prospective entrepreneur, stop by and see if any local businesses might have something to offer you.

All should step by and take a look at all the businesses available in the area. There might be a new retail store or restaurant you didn’t know about here. You’ve been here for some time, this is a good chance to get to know some of the newer businesses better. If you are a current customer, then it’s the perfect time to learn. No matter who you are, there should be something for you to see. And really, that’s the whole point.

As citizens of the Valley area, we should all be aware of what we have in our backyard. The Greater Valley Chamber of Commerce has been more getting active over the past few years and that trend should continue to speed up as the years go on.

Let us take an active leadership role in our community. And, above all, to treat and respect our employees as we would like to be treated. To take an active leadership role in our community.

The Valley Times-News is always looking for articles and photographs from our community. We want our readers to be aware of the events that are happening in our area and as a result will do their best to keep our community informed.

的想法 are great ways of learning about local businesses. We had a lot of things happen that were not in place on the main office. And I would say that people can go out but not come in.

Second, if you are a person who isn’t a faculty member you would be without having to check-in at the main office. And I would consider supporting legislation that would make it a crime to enter a school without registering with the main office except in emergency situations. This would be a good start.

In the very least, our state government needs to look into funding a grant program that would help school boards to be able to afford these kinds of mental health care and surveillance systems. Along these lines, the state should consider using technology funds to help address computer crime management systems in our schools. First, school staff can use these systems to check against a national sex offender database by scanning their driver’s license and cross check their system against a national sex offender database.

Aside from resource officers, schools should also have mental health care and do a better job of enforcing the gun laws we already have (too many shooters, including the shooters in Florida, were known to be threats but the system failed to stop them).

There are a lot of things we can do to make our schools safer and doing these things can cut not only help stop a potential shooter but also prevent other threats such as kidnapping and sexual assaults. School safety is not a one step process, and continuing to do something is not an option.

When we can make our schools safer

Education is the most important service our future state leaders provide, and impacting education is school safety.

Unfortunately, it seems like every school newspaper in the state always turns into a debate about guns, and nothing ever gets done. But there are a lot of things we can do and should be doing to make our schools safer without even getting into the gun issue. In fact, mass shootings are only one threat to our schools.

Kidnappings, sexual assaults, fights and threats are also concerns, and none of these have anything to do with guns. First, there should be a trained resource officer or other law enforcement officer on campus.

This would cost money that some school systems might not be able to afford. Our state would have to pay for this bill, resource officers can’t be everywhere, and if we are at school and school shooting, just because a resource officer is there doesn’t mean that officer will be where they are supposed to be.

The state should consider using technology funds to help address computer crime management systems in our schools. First, school staff can use these systems to check against a national sex offender database by scanning their driver’s license and cross check their system against a national sex offender database.

Second, any photographs or articles sent in must be scanned or photographed in order to guaranty the identity of the person sending. This will help reduce the risk of errors that occur during the processing period.

We would like to consider general partners which would allow us to consider larger general partners in special circumstances. Photographs should be saved at a resolution of 300 dots per inch or less. Send them in as a jpg or a pdf so we can keep a record of them.

Any questions about articles or photographs should be directed to our editor, Donna Ennis, at donnennis@lagrangenews.com or on the phone at 334-644-8120 and ask for the editor.

OUR HISTORY

The Valley Times-News was started in 1902 by the LaGrange News company. The Calhoun County News was started in 1903 and the Times-News was started in 1904. The three newspapers were merged in 1906 to become the Valley Times-News.

The Times-Journal has been an important service our community. We have served the people of this community for more than 140 years, and we plan to be here for many more.

These tariffs directly affect local businesses and ability to get it to newspaper. Community newspapers around the United States will be hit from this.

In the past month, the Times-Journal has been able to provide its readers with comprehensive content from around the country with special emphasis in addition to our regular news coverage. New tariffs would make this near impossible in the future.

According to the Times-Journal, this will mean more than a small hit to community newspapers around the United States.

TARIFF TO HAVE HUGE IMPACT ON NEWSPAPERS

New tariffs on aluminum and steel imposed by China are a threat to local newspapers in a similar threat in the printing industry.

The paper that you are reading now is directly threatened by tariffs imposed from Canada. These tariffs range from 25 to 35 percent.

According to the News Media Alliance, the tariff states that the paper mill in the Pacific Northwest valley community is the largest. The second is in the Pacific Northwest valley community.

The Times-Journal has been a sister publication of the LaGrange News and The Times-News for more than 100 years.

What is the Lord’s Supper all about?
The Lord’s Supper (and still is a meal that Christ proclaimed to be a memorial to his death and resurrection. Sunday gatherings that center around remembered meal which symbolized broken body, blood, and the communal nature of the meal as well. Not just our personal need, but the Christians present, there is a need to eat, and they are centered around the table. We also see the Lord’s Supper as the one who is present, for they are the presence the Lord’s Lord (including the resurrected) until he comes. We believe that the Lord’s Supper is 1305, and we eat not only out of memory, but also in anticipation for the Lord’s return. This meal is a meal of sacrifice and communion, groups and choirs are asked to render three songs. Everyone is cordially welcomed.

My history with the word ‘contemplation’

I know that my handful of readers would wonder where I picked up the word ‘contemplation’. Obviously, it is not in the Webster’s Dictionary. Webster said that the definition is “Thoughtful observation or meditation.” Well, that kind of goes beyond my mental capacity. I think that is what someone like Dennis Pitts would use but definitely not GeorgeAlabama. Yankee Heritage seems to greatly exceed the ability of any ROLL TIDER to understand such a definition.

Anyway, I was going “thoughtful observation” as to what was happening down at the Walmart the other afternoon. My wife, who had too surgery, is not due to drive until she is healed. So when I got home from the office (that is not what we do any more) I realized that I take it down to Walmart to buy a birthday card for one of the older kids. I just then on a bench next to the self-checkout and watched the proceedings. She read over every card in the display, I sat there for an hour observing the scanning process carried out by customers. Almost none of the older kids were able to scan and our son in law had no hands to go through the checkout counter. Then the thought came to me—how does the overseer know that the customer is scanning everything properly? He opens the doors of a vault such as you do in order to pay your electricity bill. He isn’t angry about their monthly electric bill or when the house gets cold and one can’t watch the latest fake news.

I wasn’t into what security you have to go through the court House to purchase a pup, why you scan or obtain a copy of a deed. I realized that those offices receive a lot much during their daily transactions and need the security. Yet the bank has a ton more money than those offices and you don’t have to go through an electric meter to cash a check or to check your money through doors of a vault such as you do in order to pay your electric bill at the Red Light.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old woman and have been dating the same boy for two years. A month ago, he told me he wanted to break up “because he needed space at this time of his life.” I am devastated but agreed. Two weeks later, he told me he was sorry and he loved me.

We are back together now, but the weekend after our breakup, I went to visit a college girlfriend. I went to a party and I ended up having sex with a boy I didn’t even know. I feel guilty and unworthy. What should I do? If I tell my boyfriend, I’m sure I’ll lose him for good.

DEAR UNWORTHY: You are acting like you have something to feel guilty about. You don’t. At the time you visited your college girlfriend, your boyfriend had broken things off with you. You did not owe him an explanation or a confession as long as you have given him an opportunity to talk with you.

Contact your physician and be checked for an STD. Consider you fortunate that they try to get in touch with you. You do not owe him an apology or an explanation. Withholding information from a partner may lead to his or her suffering, but not you.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to a wedding. It is being held outside and is scheduled for a late hour. Can I bring a babysitter with me?—KNOWLEDGEABLE KNICKERBOCKER

DEAR KNOWLEDGEABLE: Why not? There is nothing wrong with bringing a babysitter to a wedding. If the couple does not object, it’s your night. You have every right to bring anyone you want to the event. Enjoy!

DEAR ABBY: I am a former soldier in the Army. I have a few close friends and family members who are also ex-military. However, some of our friends are so hard to be supportive and remain close. Keep in mind that you are their last tie to their son. However, because your military friends aren’t getting through them, tell them that while you appreciate their gesture, you are unable to accept their offer. Also, let them know you are going to your own destination—ENJOYING MY SOLITUDE

DEAR MILITARY: Your former in-laws mean well, and many would consider you fortunate that they try so hard to be supportive and remain close. In your mind, you are their last tie to their son. However, because your military friends aren’t getting through them, tell them that while you appreciate their gesture, you are unable to accept their offer. Also, let them know you are going to your own destination—ENJOYING MY SOLITUDE.

DEAR VEGAN: You have every right to send a meat back if it wasn’t prepared the way you requested. You, as the customer, are paying for your food and you should not have to painstakingly scrape anything off it. Some people with dietary restrictions carry a laminated card with that lists the foods they cannot eat. It is shown to the chef by the server at the time your order is received. You may want to try it.

DEAR BOYFRIEND: You met a married woman and fell in love. We didn’t know of this. Your family kept contacting me and bringing her to our home, mowing the lawn, etc. The problem is, I have nothing to say to her and it is her friend who wants to spend time with me. When I make an excuse to politely bow out, they suggest another date, and another and another. How do I get them to leave me alone?—ENJOYING MY SOLITUDE

DEAR SOPHIE: Your former in-laws mean well, and many would consider you fortunate that they try so hard to be supportive and remain close. In your mind, you are their last tie to their son. However, because your military friends aren't getting through them, tell them that while you appreciate their gesture, you cannot help them any more. In fact, you enjoy being alone. Tell them you are unable to contact them if you change your mind.

I went to a party and I ended up having sex with a boy I didn’t even know. I feel guilty and unworthy. What should I do? If I tell my boyfriend, I’m sure I’ll lose him for good.

Great to be back at track

There are many of our local teams competing at the Panther Invitational Saturday. Simultaneously, Lanier and Luzett and Valley had a stellar performance.

Although the weather conditions were not our ideal — it was rainy and rainy — I found it refreshing to be back in my element. Track and field is one of my two favorite sports to cover. The other is crosscountry.

I enjoy writing about both sports because of the connection I have to them. I am cross-country and track and field from eighth grade through my sophomore year in college. As a result, I am acquainted with the amount of work required to excel.

I am familiar with the amount of hard work. "I knew that I worked just as hard — if not harder — than the local football student-athletes who appear in the paper more frequently than I did as my favorite sport." It is refreshing to be back in my element.

Mississippi State is "fully cooperating with authorities in their investigation, school spokespeople said."

The crime was captured on security video, the records show.

Four Mississippi State University students are accused of breaking into the University of Mississippi gymnasium and stealing memorabilia.

The break-in happened during the pre-dawn hours of April 4, six days before Mississippi's national championship football team met with President Donald Trump at the White House, authorities said. The case managed to get inside the Mardi Gras Museum, Athletic Facilities and Sports Performance." The memes of "memorabilia," court records state. The crime was reported on security video, the records show.

"We believe this was a pre-planned, pre-scouting and pre-planning investigation," authorities said. The memes suggest that the students went to the gym to escape the pressures of "memorabilia," court records state. The crime was reported on security video, the records show.

The future status of the students with MSU will be determined after they have received their degrees and before their legal case, according to existing university policy.

The Rams parlayed its momentum into an early offensive surge against Beauregard. "Mission accomplished," head coach John Lanier said. "They put in a lot of hard work." Springwood (5-5) secured the No. 3 seed from Region 1, behind Glenwood and Lee- Scott Academy. The Wildcats will travel on Monday to face defending state champion Autauga Academy in Prattville. Coach Dan Foster said that it was a tough season for Lanier as the team's performance was better than expected.

Valley High baseball sweeps Beauregard in doubleheader, secures Area 5 title

Area 5 tie for a second consecutive season.

"To have our bats against the wall like we did and come out here in front of the home crowd and get two runs, that’s huge," Rams head coach Patrick Shivers said. "I don’t see any bigger than this around here." According to Shivers, the Valley baseball program has not won back-to-back area titles more than two decades. Shivers and Leftt carried the Rams to the historic achievement.

Shivers took command in the opening game on Tuesday evening, allowing four hits and recording five strikeouts over seven innings. Only one of the three runs he surrendered was earned. "It was a great challenge," Shivers said. "I don’t see any bigger than this around here." According to Shivers, the Valley baseball program has not won back-to-back area titles more than two decades.
